· OUR STORY ·

All food has a story. We farm so that the story of our food is rich and savory, healthy and satisfying. It's a historic, environmental, neighborhood and family story that expresses our deep commitment to this place we call home and a healthy future for us all.

We grow and sell farm fresh food and offer authentic farm experiences, cooking classes, field to table events, and professional and family retreats for our island community, and visitors near and far who want to understand, experience and celebrate our region and the food we produce.

Our 30-acre family farm includes a farmhouse, farm kitchen, micro-creamery, gardens, greenhouses, and pastures for animals. We are not an “event center” but rather an authentic working farm that strives to increase the number of people who honor the land and the sustenance it provides.

We respect the land and its limits and grow food of the highest integrity, taste and quality. Our cutting-edge systems include crop and animal rotation, solar power, biodiesel, water recapture and composting to conserve, reclaim and regenerate resources. Our name comes from our commitment to increase our collective nourishment just as farms did back in their heydays.

· EXPERIENCE OUR WORKING FARM ·

Our 1890s four-bedroom farmhouse inn and state of the art farm kitchen are located on a restored farmstead on the south end of Bainbridge Island—a short ferry ride from Seattle’s waterfront. Staying in one of our rooms puts you in the center of our working farm.

Whether vacationing, celebrating a special occasion or continuing your food education, we offer a unique Bainbridge Island lodging option that allows you to experience our farm, food and Island.
